Cora

An Embrace of Organic Beauty

Stacked river rocks, fallen leaves and flower petals, a layered treetop canopy as observed from above—nature's compositions are at once effortless, ethereal, organic and breathtakingly beautiful. These are the sort of vignettes that served as the guiding inspiration for Cora, a line of low-to-the-ground tables whose forms are stylized, distinctly organic, and offer the ability to nest, stack and layer in visually compelling ways.

Designed by the Landscape Forms team, the Cora line includes a large 10.5" high table, a medium 12.5" high table, and a small 14" high table. Their construction is simple, time-tested and refined, crafted solely using laser cut steel tops and robust bent steel understructure to ensure durability and the efficient use of energy and materials during manufacturing.

Artfully Play with Color & Contrast

Cora's curvature appears effortless yet is meticulously designed and crafted, lending the line a unique and recognizable graphic quality both as stand-alone pieces and while working together in conversation. Compositions of multiple Cora tables can be striking for their play with color and contrast, almost reminiscent of celebrated midcentury cut-out paper art.

Joined by other site furnishings, Cora is designed to serve sophisticated outdoor common areas like high-end airport lounges, multi-family residential amenity spaces, and casual outdoor seating arrangements on a corporate and education campuses—just to name a few. In the places people seek for comfort and respite, Cora tables contribute style and elegance with a welcoming, friendly and at-home feel.

The Versatility & Timelessness of Nature's Forms

With understated natural form, Cora offers great design versatility, serving as a complement to landscape elements and organic design while also serving to artfully contrast the right angles and crisp edges of modern architecture. The elegant curvature continues in the expertly engineered understructure of the tables throughout which not all points are parallel to the ground plane. This creates a cantilevered, overhanging effect that enables Cora tables to nest in various orientations while remaining stable and fully grounded.

The Cora line pairs ideally with a wide range of outdoor lounge seating options, including the Monterey line of curvilinear soft seating. The tables are offered in a full powdercoat color palette, and finished with our proprietary Panguard II® Polyester Powdercoat System that's recognized for its industry-leading durability, color retention and resistance to wear.
